Fernando García-Dory

Lives and works between Madrid, Mallorca and the northern Spanish mountains

Fernando García-Dory's collaborative projects involve using art as a means to try to precipitate social change, often addressing attitudes towards food production, community and tradition. His projects frequently involve creating a working platform or stage for meetings and discussions on the current situation of a particular aspect of land use or other farming related issue. He is interested in the process of building sustainable communities through collaborative and discursive agro-ecological projects, actions, and cooperatives.
